ST. LUKE, HEAGE, DERBYSHIREGENERAL INFORMATION

The first reference to a chapel at Heage is in 1545 when it was destroyed by a great storm. At this time Heage was a chapel within the parish of Duffield. George Pole of Heage Hall was instructed to rebuild the chapel and in 1661 this was completed. There is a stone with the initials G.P. 1661 in the south wall of the chancel. This was originally in the west wall. In 1826 the chapel was enlarged. The west wall and bell tower were taken down and an extension was built, thus forming the unusual 'T' shape of the present church. The bell tower was rebuilt at the north end of the extension.

In 1847 the churchyard was consecrated by the Bishop of Lichfield. Before this burials had taken place either at Duffield or Belper. In 1858 Duffield parish was divided and Heage became a separate parish. St Anne's, Ambergate was dedicated in 1892, thus forming a separate parish from Heage.

The garden of remembrance was dedicated in 1979 by the Bishop of Derby and the churchyard extension to the north of the church was consecrated by the Bishop of Repton in 1983.

Heage is a village two miles from Ripley. (Map Reference:- SK 3750). The higher points of the parish give views of the Cromford Canal and the Amber Valley. Heage Hall in Nether Heage was the home of a branch of the Chandos-Pole family for centuries. Near the church is a restored windmill, one of the best examples of a tower mill in the county.

The registers of St Luke's are at the County Record Office, Matlock. The baptisms date from 1819, marriages and burials from 1847. They include part of Ambergate until 1897.

The memorials have been copied verbatim including any epitaphs, and have been typed as such except where the symbol / indicates a new line in the typescript. After each inscription there is an indication of the form the memorial takes e.g. Slate Headstone. The symbol _ indicates that the number or letter concerned is either wholly or partially illegible.

INDEXES

The index of names refers to the reference number designated to each memorial, and all names, villages, houses etc. mentioned on the memorials are also indexed and listed separately.
